State Tax Appeal Board Sets Figure For Real Estate

The state Board of Tax Appeals of the Department of Taxation of Ohio has officially approved the 1952 abstract of real estate values in Fayette County presented to the board by County Auditor Ulric

Word to this effect was received from the state board Thursday.

The aggregate value of real property in the county as set forth in the abstract for 1952 was approved at $37,800,990. This represented an increase of $3,070,700 over abstract approved in 1951. It is the amount on which real estate tax collections will be made in 1953.

County Auditor Acton said the abstract presented to the state includes new buildings and meets the requirements for increased valuations previously ordered by the state Board of Tax appeals.

THE OFFICIAL county tax duplicate on which taxes will be collected for 1953 starting the early part of the coming year, however, will carry a total valuation for taxation of $55,552,545, according to figures given Thursday morning by Auditor Acton.

In addition to the real estate valuations on the abstract approved by the state, there will be personal AMA termed one aspect of the recomes of under $3,000. tax valuations amounting to $10,- port "compulsory insurance. 369,965 and public utility valuaget Commission and collections to medical care of a large segment would work: be made, will apply.

Health Insurance Given Approval Plan Is Proposed

Truman's commission on the health This would double federal health needs of the nation came up today outlays. with a middle-ground proposal for solving one of the country's hottest issues-how to pay the doctor's

The commission proposed a 11/2 billion dollar annual cutlay of federal and state funds to bolster voluntary insurance plans covering the costs of hospital and medical care for all the nation's people lacking full ability to pay.

The program would be adminis-

for-dollar. It differs both from a plan unsuccessfully espoused by President Truman and a rival proposal of the American Medical Association.

President Truman, since 1945, has vainly plugged for a federal system of pre-paid sickness insurance for 125 million wage-earning Americans-to be financed by a compulsory tax on employes and employers, along the lines of the social security system.

The AMA has termed Truman's proposal "socialized medicine," and has campaigned for the extension of "voluntary" insurance plans-that is, plans which a person can purchase if he wishes.

The AMA, however, has never taken a stand as to whether it favored a federal subsidy plan. In Chicago, the president of the helping people with annual in-standard size divisions under arms

One of its main findings was that 'despite superior medical service and low death rates, Americans are not enjoying as good health as might be expected."

One prime reason, the commission said in its report to Truman, was that people in low income groups can't afford adequate medical care—even on present pre-payment plans.

The commission called for:

A spokesman for the commission told a reporter that with the exception of $100 million proposed for aid to medical schools, $20 million for medical research and $10 million for federal aid in organizing medical services on a regional basis, all other funds would be on a matching basis with the states.

When the Korean war started, President Truman called it a police action. Few men would have the temerity to apply that name to it now. In terms of casualties and economic cost, Korea has been a full-scale conflict.

U. S. News & World Report recently ran a lengthy article on that war, in which it dealt with the problem of what President-elect Eisenhower may be able to do to end it. First of all, the bare statistics are staggering and horrifying -especially so when we consider that the war is now 100 percent stalemated and nothing resembling victory is in sight. Allied losses total 294,000, of which United States forces suffered 128,000, South Korea 155,000 and other nations 11,000. By comparison, the United States had 105,-000 casualties during the first two-and-ahalf years of the Pacific phase of World War II—less than for the comparable period of the Korean war.

Measured in money, the direct cost to us of the Korean conflict has passed the $15,000,000,000 mark, and the indirect cost has been tremendous. Measured in materiel, we have shipped more than 12,-200,000 tons of gas and oil to Korea, and over 20,300,000 tons of munitions, trucks and other supplies.

U. S. News summarized the alternatives that, in the opinion of military leaders, will confront President Eisenhower in his search for an end to the war. First, the scope of the war can be extended, with bombing of Manchuria, a blockage of China and so on, in a mighty effort to win a decisive military victory. Second, the war can still be confined to Korea but stepped up in intensity, with the objective of pushing the Communist forces to the very end of the peninsula.

Third, Nationalist Chinese forces, from Formosa, could land in China proper and create a major diversion. Fourth, during a period of time (the military say it would take several years) South Korean forces could be built up and trained to take over-a solution which General Eisenhower has mentioned. Fifth, other Asiatic troops might be employed within Korea-Japanese, Filipinos, and Nationalist Chinese. Sixth, we could withdraw entirely from Korea, which is the least likely alternative of all, in the light of the views of the Eisenhower-Dulles team. Lastly a solution based on two or more of these possibilities might

U. S. News speculated whether Eisenhower would consider General Mac-Arthur's plan for winning the war This was a bold, far-reaching concept, which included the bombing of Manchuria, a Nationalist Chinese invasion of the mainland of China, a blockade of the China coast, and the arming and supplying of anti-Red guerillas within China. Argument in favor is that this, vigorously enough prosecuted, could bring Red China to her knees. Argument against is that it could mark the start of a third global

There is one point that is undoubtedly in the forefront of Eisenhower's mind and the minds of his aides-and it is a point which many people seem to overlook. U. S. News put it this way: "Korea is only a part of a bigger conflict in East-West relations. Its solution, to be successful, must not compromise the West's future chances in Indo-China, Malaya, Europe, in the UN, in any war that may lie ahead." This is a tremendous complica-

Himing explained he was unable to live on his clergyman's pay and took up baking part-time to make enough extra money to support his wife. They were expecting a baby. He gave up baking when he lost his church posts and took the clerk's job.

Rehearsals for the special assem- tain, Jim Perrill as the Roman bly Christmas program to be pre- soldier. sented to the student body by the senior dramatics class of Washington C. H. High School are now under way.

"The Shepherd's Candle" will be given Dec. 23 in the auditorium at 1 P. M. Students in thedramatics class have complete charge of the program.

Thomas Mansell, dramatics instructor, is not only taking the lead realistic scenery. in the play but he also wrote it and is directing and staging it.

Before coming to WHS, Mansell was in professional show business in New York as an actor. He got his start in "summer stock" in New England. Then went on to New

It was when he was in New York that he became interested in religious drama and wrote "The Sheppard's Candle." Mansell said he was interested in this type of drama because it should be as vigorous as any other type of play.

He has written five plays of this particular type and some of them have given as far away as mission churches in Egypt. Mansell has also written several other types of plays.

When "The Shepherd's Candle" was first presented in a church in Pittsburgh, Pa., Mansell took the lead and because he is familiar with it and the short time the class has for rehearsal Mansell is taking again.

THE STORY OF the play is about David, a shepherd, who leaves his flocks to follow the Christmas star that is shining over Bethlehem and arrives at the manger where Jes us had been born. He is portrayed by a soothsayer (fortune teller) to the Roman guard. Too protect the infant, David refuses to tell where this great king is that he has boasted that is greater than Caesar.

Despite beating with a whip and as he proclaims the birth of the Saviour Christ, The Lord as a light for all the world, David is led to the cross and crucified by the Ro-

The candle that is mentioned in the title is the one that the shepherd used to hold above the cradle of Jesus and has become the Christmas candle that has shone down through the ages.

Dramatic students taking part in the play are Joe Provost as the Roman jailer, Eddie Moots as young Joseph, Mary Lou Craig as Rebecca, Richard McCarty as Paul, Gene Ford as Gabriel, Jane Washburn as Miriam, Mary Wright as Naomi, Diane Elliott as Ruth, Shirley Vincent as Esther, Jim Anderson as the soothsayer, Mike Bireley as Joseph, Ann Dews as Mary, Dick Waters as the Roman cap-

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18-President Truman's waspish political nature has now conquered the generous, post-election mood in which he offered complete cooperation with President-elect Eisenhower during the interregnum period, between Nov. 4 and the Jan. 20 inauguration. Grimly and determinedly, the outbound Democrats are building hurdles in the path of the incoming administra-

The first evidence of Truman's glumness over the election results was reflected in his peevish and grudging offer of his presidential plane to fly Eisenhower

More flagrant proof of his sourness and pettiness came in his tart comment on the Eisenhower-MacArthur endeavors for peace or victory in Korea. Veteran White House attaches and newspaper reporters were shocked at the Missourian's behavior.

TACTICS — Truman's personal conduct, however, would be only an item for psychiatric study, if it were not that it is matched by administration activities which appear to be designed to embarrass his successor. In both domestic and international fields, it seems that he is trying to build pitfalls for the Republicans as they assume responsibility for the first time in a generation.

Indeed, it is understood that Truman and Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, the unsuccessful 1952 nominee, did not part on entirely friendly terms because of the President's outline of this sort of political strategy and plans for a Democratic comeback in 1956. As a selfless, statesmanlike and generous individual. Stevenson sincerely favors a maximum of cooperation with Eisenhower. He made that plain in the statement he issued after his recent conference with Truman. He himself had planned a trip to Korea, if he were elected. He has no use for Truman's back-room tactics dent of the United States.

Truman Peevish after Election

CONTROVERSY - Despite numerous unsettled and dangerous controversies with England, our only major ally in the cold war, Truman has worsened relations with that country by his handling of the Iranian oil controversy and his presecution of British and American firms involved in that Middle East dis-

Reluctantly, and only because of persistence by the defendants' lawyers in open courtroom, Attorney General McGranery now admits that it was Truman himself who personally demanded an investigation and possible conviction of the Anglo-American firms.

In disregard of State's advice, Truman insisted on this antitrust action last June for political purposes, hoping to make a play to small business and independent interests in this field. Senator Sparkman, the vice-presidential nominee, headed that committee, and helped to force action against the oil firms.

Then, while condemning the practices of these companies in vitriolic language that Mossadegh and Stalin re-echoed in propaganda pamphlets, Truman permitted Secretary Acheson to offer a $100 million bribe to Iran, if it would come to terms with these same firms. That was the amount of the subsidy which the secretary of state promised to Mossadegh, if he would do business with the British govern-

BACKFIRE-Meanwhile, Acheson had ordered American oil firms not to try to buy or market Iranian oil, and thereby get Mossadegh off a painful, economic hook. We were then supporting 10 Downing Street on this issue.

But when this inconsistent program backfired against Truman, he reversed himself and proclaimed that American interests could buy Iranian oil, if they were willing to chance damage suits in British courts. London still maintains that the disputed petroleum is British property.

Anyway, the British are furious over Washington's handling of the whole affair. It will be up to Eisenhower to placate them when Churchill visits the new occupant of the White House next spring.

McGRANERY'S DRIVE-Again at Truman's personal and belated urging, the normally easy-going McGranery has started a drive against Communists inside and outside the government, paroled gangsters, allegedly crooked or inefficient Department of Justice officials, and criminals who have been subject to deportation for many years. He is cleaning up a messy house he is about to vacate for another

It is a complete reversal of the Truman tolerance toward the political underworld, a presidential characteristic which was developed fully during the Kefauver and other Senate investigations. It constitutes the first exhibition of White House indignation on these subjects.

none of these actions can be consumated before Eisenhower takes over on Jan. 20. They will be dumped on his doorstep at a time when he will still be only a presidential apprentice. They will provide a Pandora-Truman box of troubles for the new and inexperienced attorney general, Herbert Brownell. They will put Ike on the spot!

In the controversy between public and private power, Truman has cooked up another embarrassing scheme for his successors. But the ramifications of that plot are so extensive and important that they must be told in a future column.

Prince And Princess Will Make Noisy Holiday In Castle

WOLFERTON, Norfolk, England-There will be more than a little noise at a Royal mansion called Sandringham house this Christmas. For Prince Charles, husky four-year-old and Princess Anne, who is two, are at noisy

The British royal family will as usual, be at nearby Sandringham for Christmas. Queen Elizabeth, the Duke of Edingburgh, their children, the queen mother Elizabeth and Princess Margaret will be there, and relatives and a few friends will be invited.

From a study overlooking a broad terrace the queen will make her Christmas broadcast to the whole of her empire in the afternoon. It is the room normally used for these Christmas talks by the head of the British nation and commonwealth. The first was made by King George V in 1932 and since then they have been skipped only two years, 1936 and 1938.

Always, except once, they have been "live" broadcasts. The talk last year by the ailing George VI, weak after a lung operation, was a recording, an effort of considerable difficulty in which listeners around the world could detect the strains under which he labored to keep his annual appointment with 'my people". The broadcast by his daughter this year will be

THE FACT THAT the king died since last Christmas, and that he was at an unusually big Christmas party last year, will give older members of the family some melancholy reflections. So more than usual, it will be a festival for the children, and they will be expected to make it a merry day.

Prince Charles by now knows all that a child needs to know about Christmas, and Princess Anne is catching up fast. The queen and the children have arranged to come to Sandringham some days before Christmas, and Prince Charles hoped it would be soon enough so he could be of some help to Jim Brown.

It's Jim Brown's business, as head forester on the 7,000 acre Sandringham estate, to pick out, and chop down, and set up just the correct spruce tree. He sets It up in the big ball room on Sandringham House, and it must be just the right height-12 feet-to allow for the star on top. Then around the tree he sets trestle tables, and on these are spread the presents for everyone. Jim Brown also drags in a very large log for the fireplace and, as is proper in an English home, the yule log and the glittering tree become twin hearts of the Christmas festival.

SANDRINGHAM House is a three-storied stone mansion of 150 rooms, many gables, turrets and hundreds of windows. It is out in the country. The adjacent village of Sandringham has a population of only about 100. The estate lies in a flat countryside just a few miles from the North Sea, and it is a region which can become very cold and desolate. Desolate particularly are some of the moors where bracken and thickets, rather than trees and farm lands, are features of a somewhat cheerless landscape. With a little luck of weather there mght be some snow for the toy sleds which are sure to be among the presents for the royal youngsters. There is certainly room to maneuver them on the spacious lawns.

THE MOORS which on a day of sleet or fog look so dreary are precisely the feature of the region which first attracted notice of the British kings. The moors made excellent breeding grounds for grouse, partridges and phesants. Both George V and George VI were expert shots, and the last king introduced the Duke of Edinburgh to the delights of hunting. The duke has become an enthusiast, and some hunting is sure to be on program of his Christmas season. The birds being hunted at present are partridges, and the estate staff hopes it has manged to chase out moast of the poachers.

So what the royal family eats in the Christmas season may depend in part on the Duke's skill with a shot gun. There will be game, more or less, and turkey is a traditional bird.

The family travels to Sandringham some days before Christmas, preceded by about 50 servants of Buckingham palace to augment the royal mansion's permanent staff of a couple of dozen. The real observance of Christmas starts on the eve'. In recent years a Salvation army choir from the village of Dersingham has come over to serenade the family with a program of carols. The singers are invited in for refreshments.

PARCEL OPENING time is after breakfast on Christmas Day, and this year, growing children being about, it is expected to be the nosiest moment of the day. Royal Christmas presents usually are simple objects, useful or of sentimental interest. Such gifts as automobiles, yachts and polo ponies are given on other occasions, although the queen may have a suspicion that she will be getting some jew-

Otto Graham's Record Both Good And Bad

CLEVELAND (A)-Look at quarterback Otto Graham's 1952 passing record one way, and it's his best in seven years with the Cleveland Browns. Look at it another way and it's his worst.

Automatic Otto, one-time Northwestern University All - America, completed 181 passes for 2,816 yards in 12 National Football League games this fall. That was 23 throws and 509 yards better than the next best pro mark, made by Pittsburgh's Jim Finks.

Only the great Sammy Baugh of Washington ever gained more yardage on his arm in a single NFL campaign-2,938 in 1947.

But look at it the other way, and the 31-year-old off-season insurance salesman had his worst year in percentage of passes completed and enemy interceptions.

For the first time in seven seasons, Otto failed to complete at least half of his throws. He tried 364, and needed just one more completion to raise a 49.7 per cent record to the break-even point. Before this season, his average was 55.5 per cent for six years.

Three ex-West Virginia Mountaineers are playing in the Nationa Football League. They are Rex Baumgardner, Tom Keane and Dave Stephenson.

> Cherry Hill School Carol Sing Friday

The annual Christmas carol sing, which has become a tradition at the Cherry Hill School, is to be held Friday afternoon, starting at 2:30 o'clock, under the direction of Mrs. George Pensyl, the city school music director.

Mrs. Pensy has been assisted by the teachers in preparations for the sing which have been going on for some time. The 'eachers are Miss Opal Davids, Mrs. Ralph Child, Miss Carolyn Lou Bidwell, Mrs. Elvin Lust, Miss Jane Durant, Miss Iris Noble and Mrs. G. E. B'dwell.

The program is to open with the pupils of the upper grades singing "O Come All Ye Faithful" while these of the lower grades enter.

The first graders are to sing 'Away in a Manger;" pupils of second grade are to sing "Winds Through the Olive Trees;" those FOR RENT-Four room furnished apartment with bath. Adults. Phone 26801.

Conservancy District Case Before Judges

Dissolution Sought In Action Brought Bv Prosecutors

Judges in the 17-county Scioto-Sandusky Conservancy District, at CLAIMS FILED a meeting in Columbus Wednes day, indicated that they will consider the question of dissolving the district on next Jan. 30.

The Fayette County Farm Bureau and others who have taken a Jesse F. Judges of the district who met each estate. in Columbus, Wednesday adjourned REALTY TRANSFERS until Jan, 30 after requesting attorneys presenting arguments be-of Union and Delaware counties lots 103 and 104, city. were allowed 10 days by the judges to file the briefs on their motion for dissolution of the district, a step taken by some of the various county commissioners of the district in a long fight to break up the district.

Fayette County officials and others who have been giving attention to the situation, base their objections to Fayette County being considered as a part of the district on the grounds that this county would receive no benefits from the proposal for huge dams, reservoirs and other construction in which the counties of the district would have a huge share of the expenses. They also declare that more money is being collected on the project than has been shown to be needed at this time.

County Treasurer Charles Fabb and Cliff Hughes, president of the Fayette County Board of Commissioners, attended the session of the judges at Wednesday's meeting, as

Trapshoot Planned For Sunday
